To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in response to your ad on the Editor & Publisher website. I am a former associate editor of the Welcomat which now is known as Philadelphia Weekly.

During my time at the Welcomat, I was involved in several areas as writer and editor, including copy editing, proofreading and production (layout).

I would consider myself a "media junkie" as I read newspapers daily and keep an eye on both television and the internet.

I would be interested in either full or part-time work and am happy to be able to work from home. Since I live in Philadelphia (and have transportation), coming to Drexel Hill for monthly meetings should be no problem.

Since leaving the Welcomat, I have been doing temp work usually in editing or proofreading as well as free-lance writing.

I would be looking for a salary in the mid-to-high '20s. I have enclosed my resume and clips of my writing. Since I was the popular music critic (as well) for the Welcomat, most of the articles are music related.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Peter Brown
